BASIS FOR CONFIDENTIALITY

This information is proprietary and competitively sensitive for at least these reasons:

This confidential information identified above would allow competitors to compete more effectively against Consolidated through direct marketing and sales strategies informed by proprietary Consolidated business information. In particular, disclosure of detailed information about Consolidated's services, voice service costs by exchange, fiber build plans, customer locations by town, number of telephone lines, and budget and investment details, customer complaints, host remote location information, and Consolidated's operating procedures could be used by competitors through marketing and sales strategies to target customers in particular areas of the state. Similarly, disclosure of information concerning Consolidated's number of service technicians and other personnel would put Consolidated at a competitive disadvantage because competitors could use this information to undercut Consolidated services or shift their own priorities to gain a more competitive position.

Disclosure of this information would enhance competitors' ability to adjust their own business strategies to compete against Consolidated by means of unfair advantage.

Some of the information is also subject to relevant statutory and regulatory confidentiality provisions, including 47 C.F.R., Ch. 1, Subchapter B, Part 64, Subpart U (CPNI).

C. Confidentiality Factors.

In addition, this information is available to legal and management personnel in connection with responding to these discovery requests.

iv. Value of Information to Company and Competitors.

This information, if disclosed to competitors, would permit competing carriers to make competitive assessments regarding Consolidated's marketing, sales and customer service strategies and its capacity to address customer service inquiries, thereby enhancing their ability to compete against Consolidated. Disclosure would also enable competitors to target geographic areas or types of customers that are or may be sympathetic to a competitor's position. This information has not previously been disclosed publicly.
