

The map displays the proposed 150 kV transmission line (red line) and the existing 150 kV line (black line) in the Rutland, Vermont area. The proposed line runs from the northwest, through West Rutland, and then south towards Wallingford. The existing line runs from the northwest, through West Rutland, and then east towards Rutland. The map also shows the location of the proposed 150 kV substation near Tinmouth. The map includes the towns of Fair Haven, West Rutland, Rutland, Poulin, and Wallingford. The map also shows the location of the proposed 150 kV substation near Tinmouth.

4/3/26