B. Degree of Confidential Information.

DESCRIPTION

This material includes recent and specific data involving competitively sensitive information. Among other things, it includes descriptions of (1) Consolidated's internal and proprietary policies and procedures relating to customer service queries, customer accounts, processing work orders, repairs, trouble reports/tickets, new service, line extensions, and compliance obligations; (2) internal training and testing procedures for automated testing; (3) outage processing protocols; (4) detailed trouble ticket data including repair times, wire service centers and trouble codes; (5) detailed data on installation appointments timing; (6) data on customer credit amounts; (7) confidential information on current and historical staffing levels; (8) confidential information related to the labor union contract; (9) confidential data on Consolidated capital expenditures and specific details on plant upgrades. This material has not been made public, as set forth below.

BASIS FOR CONFIDENTIALITY

Some of this material includes confidential customer identifying information which is both competitively sensitive as well as subject to relevant statutory and regulatory confidentiality provisions, including 47 C.F.R. Subpart U (CPNI).

This information is proprietary for at least two reasons:

Confidential Documents and Information

April 8, 2019

- (1) First, this information would allow competitors to compete more effectively against Consolidated through direct marketing and sales strategies informed by proprietary Consolidated business information. In particular, disclosure of detailed information about Consolidated's trouble ticket repair times, repair trends and timing, location-specific trouble ticket trends, as well as details regarding new service installation process and timing would harm Consolidated because this particularized information would enable competitors to directly target areas of the state that experience more trouble tickets than others, or specifically cater promotional materials by using this information to identify areas and types of customers that are or may be sympathetic to a competitor's position. As well, detailed information about Consolidated's capital spending and otherwise could be used by competitors through marketing and sales strategies to target customers in particular areas of the state. Similarly, disclosure of information concerning Consolidated's number and location of service technicians and other personnel would put Consolidated at a competitive disadvantage because competitors could use this information to undercut Consolidated services or shift their own priorities to gain a more competitive position.
- (2) Second, it would enable competitors to replicate Consolidated's customer service, maintenance, and technical performance systems and make their own systems more competitive. In both cases, disclosure of this information would enhance competitors' ability to adjust their own business strategies to compete against Consolidated by means of unfair advantage. Some of the information is also subject to relevant statutory and regulatory confidentiality provisions, including 47 C.F.R. Subpart U (CPNI).

C. Confidentiality Factors.

- i. Extent Information Known Outside Company.
This information is not known outside of Consolidated other than to contractors and government agencies on a need to know basis and subject to an obligation of confidentiality.
- ii. Extent Information Known by Employees and Independent Contractors.
This information is known to Employees on an as-needed basis, and subject to an obligation of confidentiality. As to Independent Contractors, see above response to part (i).
- iii. Measures Taken to Guard Security.

Confidential Documents and Information

April 8, 2019

This information is closely held by Consolidated, maintained for the most part on password protected computer systems, and is available to individuals in the customer service, billing, maintenance, network services, information technology and legal departments on a need-to-know basis. In addition, this information is available to legal and management personnel in connection with responding to these discovery requests.

- iv. Value of Information to Company and Competitors.
This information, if disclosed to competitors, would permit competing carriers to make competitive assessments regarding Consolidated's marketing, sales and customer service strategies, its data management and technical systems, and its capacity to address customer service inquiries, thereby enhancing their ability to compete against Consolidated. Disclosure would also enable competitors to target geographic areas or types of customers that are or may be sympathetic to a competitor's position. This information has not previously been disclosed publicly.
 - v. Amount of Money or Effort to Develop Information.
The cost to develop this information is unknown.
 - vi. Cost/Difficulty in Acquiring/Duplicating Information.
See above response to part (v).
 - vii. Harm of Disclosure.
See above response to part (iv).
- D. Time Period
This information relates to ongoing Consolidated business operations and should therefore be kept confidential indefinitely.
- E. Partial Disclosure or Redaction
Subject to further review.
- F. Other Factors
None.

Confidential Documents and Information

April 8, 2019

B. Degree of Confidential Information.

This material includes both recent and historical information about staffing levels of Consolidated at various points in time. In addition certain information pertains to confidential labor negotiations. Such information is competitively sensitive because it would permit competitors to make strategic assessments regarding strengths, weaknesses, and trends in Consolidated's workforce, and distribution of the workforce across various functions and locations, thereby enhancing their ability to counteract Consolidated's business strategies, balance and distribute their own workforce in a competitively advantageous manner, and compete with an undue advantage against Consolidated. As well, competitors could use this information to compete against Consolidated through direct marketing and sales strategies informed by information regarding Consolidated's workforce. This material has not been made public, as set forth below.

C. Confidentiality Factors.i. Extent Information Known Outside Company

This information is not known outside of Consolidated, other than to contractors on a need to know basis and subject to an obligation of confidentiality.

ii. Extent Information Known by Employees and Independent Contractors

This information, in the aggregate, is generally not known to employees other than human resources and/or management personnel on a need to know basis. As to Independent Contractors, see above response to part (i).

iii. Measures Taken to Guard Security

This information is maintained primarily in password protected computer files and, in disaggregated form, in Consolidated's personnel files, which are only accessible to Consolidated personnel on a need to know basis.

iv. Value of Information to Company and Competitors.

This information is highly valuable and proprietary to Consolidated. If disclosed to competitors, it would enable them to make competitive assessments regarding strengths and weaknesses in Consolidated's staffing levels, thereby enhancing their ability to compete. This information has not previously been disclosed publicly.

v. Amount of Money or Effort to Develop Information

This information is compiled and/or developed by Consolidated in the normal course of its business. The cost to develop this information is unknown.
