In reviewing the above mentioned question still before the public, I submit the following statement.

"I support Governor Scott's veto of everything he has noted in this matter still before the public as per notice of public hearing. The questions that go unanswered, the information lacking from the VT Legislature as to costs to the homeowner and taxpayer are still not available in any format which will produce a worthwhile path to answering these questions. I highly recommend a repeal of all Legislation dealing with this subject, and then start over with production of information that is understandable, and that costs to the end user are discernable in his/her situation. What has been produced so far is not helpful at all in reaching those goals. Vermonters, me included, are simply asking, what are the costs involved? This is not an unreasonable approach.... business has been done in VT by willing buyers dealing with willing sellers in multitudes of cases and items. The Clean Heat Standard may force us to move to a reasonable State in this nation, if the above is not corrected."
